FOSS manifesto

Building principles for our FOSS commitment

Open Source Program Office

FOSS manifesto

We, as an organization,

Shape and advance the free and open source software (FOSS) ecosystem actively,

Contribute to open source communities as a high-quality, future-ready partner, and

Generate value to customers and employees as a reliable and progressive software organization

by fostering an open, collaborative, and responsible FOSS culture.

The company principles

Encourage FOSS

We empower our employees to evaluate, use, contribute to, and create inner and open source projects by providing guidance, resources, and an enabling environment.

Facilitate FOSS participation

We provide employees with the time, tools, and organizational support needed to actively participate in open and inner source communities.

Advancement through FOSS

We invest in learning opportunities, mentoring, and knowledge sharing to enable our employees to advance their skills, and professional growth through FOSS activities.

FOSS visibility

We recognize and support employees and activities representing AUMOVIO in FOSS communities and provide guidance for responsible and professional engagement.

The employee principles

Prefer FOSS

An engineer shall look for open and inner source alternatives before writing custom code or using proprietary alternatives.

Active FOSS citizen

An engineer shall actively participate in and collaborate with open source communities, helping to strengthen those communities.

Contribute FOSS

An engineer shall contribute to open and inner source projects within the scope of their regular work responsibilities.

Responsible FOSS citizen

Any employee shall always act responsibly in open and inner source communities, with care and respect in both content and communication, to uphold a positive image of both themselves and the company.
